Apartment Houses Will Dominate Old Water St.

The final plan for the Southwest waterfront calls for filling in Water St. with about 800 units of apartments in towers from 9 stories to 12 stories, as shown in yellow in the drawing above. Retail stores and restaurants will be in the bottom two stories, as shown in red.

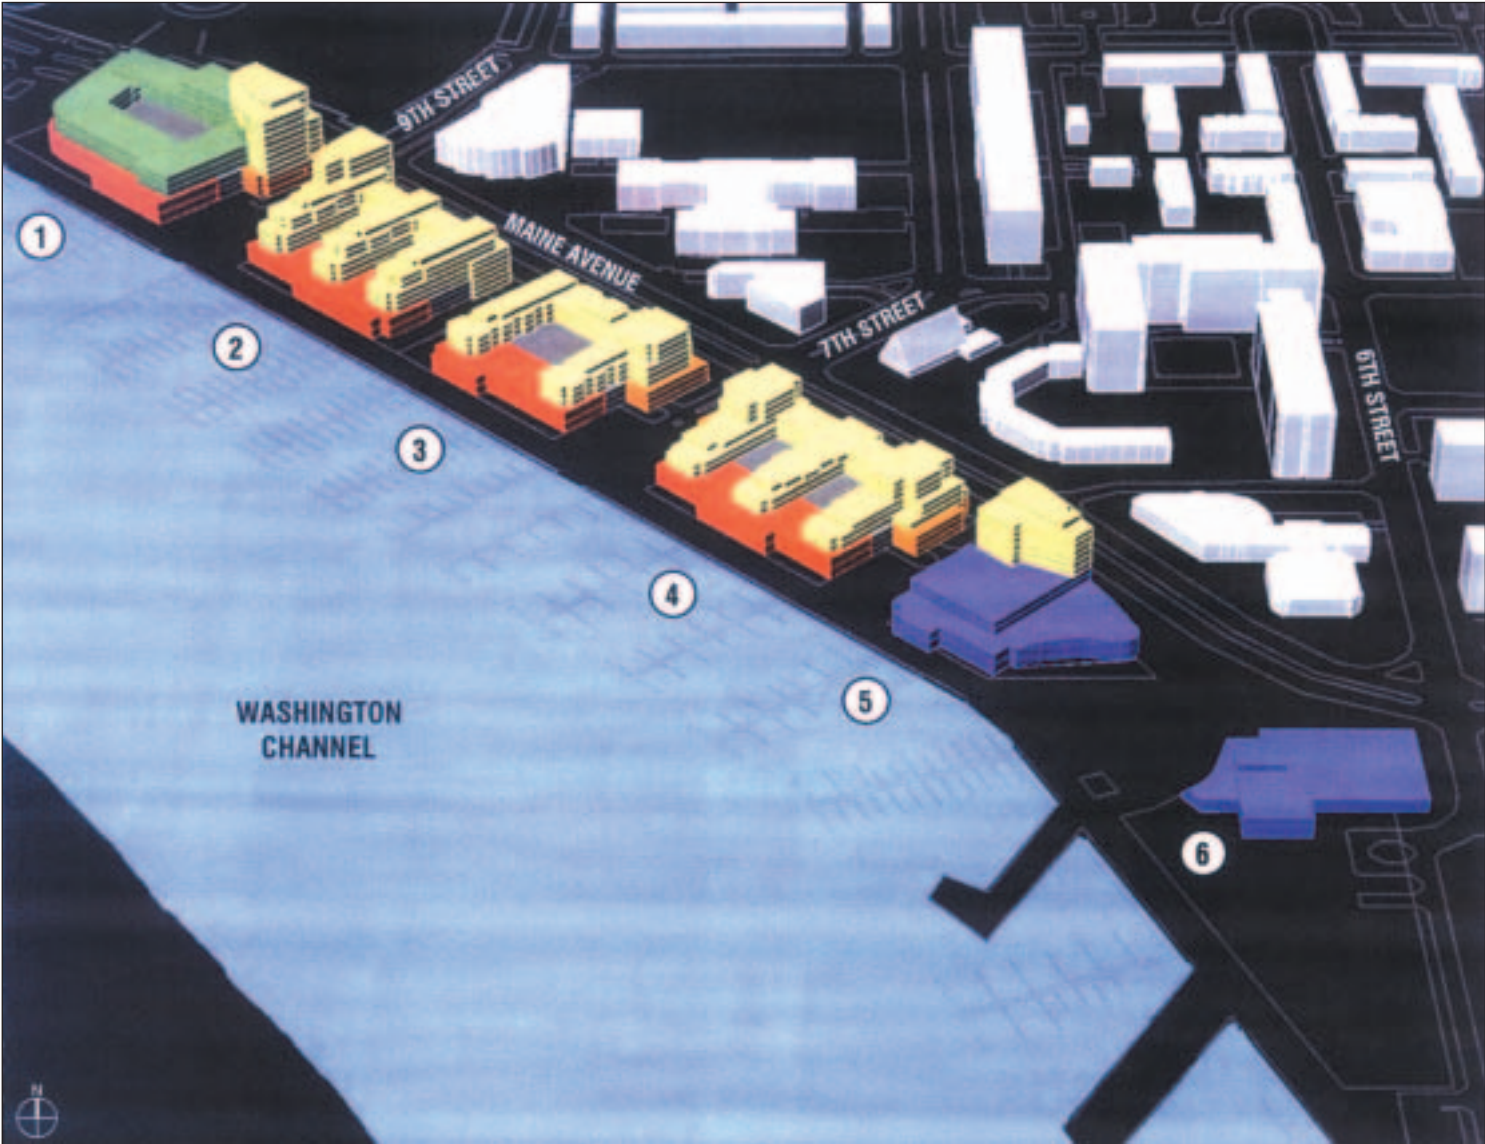

A public hearing was held at St. Augustine’s Church, with written comments being accepted at the DC Office of Planning 801 N. Capitol St. NE, DC 20002 through Wed. Mar. 19.

This is a page from the detailed report on the Southwest Waterfront Plan. Two copies of the entire report are at the S.W. Branch Library, 3rd and K St. S.W. (actually a block over at Wesley Place).

The text accompanying this drawing is as follows:

“New waterfront buildings will share the Southwest’s aspect of varied height, and will range from 6-12 stories. The resulting skyline will preserve open views and sunlight between the taller elements. The numerous setbacks and roof levels create many opportunities for roof gardens, terraces and ecological “green roofs,” which will benefit from the southern exposure of the site. This configuration will also allow for a wide variety of apartment sizes and types, and therefore, a diverse mix of residents.

“The tallest parts of the buildings are designed with narrow profiles, avoiding “slab” buildings and minimizing shadows. Apart from these tower elements, the buildings step down in height toward the southern end of the site. A one or two story community or cultural building on Site 6 will not be taller than the existing church, which occupies the site today.

View of proposed massing from south

“The proposed buildings locate housing above a two-story commercial base, designed to be flexible to allow a diverse range of retail, restaurant, or cultural uses to be included in the development. These spaces can include ground floor shops and cafes, as well as larger restaurants and tenants on the second level enjoying broad waterfront views. Outdoor dining will be encouraged adjacent to the promenade and on upper level terraces. The proposed development program can accommodate the existing businesses on the waterfront should they choose to participate in the redevelopment.” ■

Thelma Jones Co-Chairs Board

Thelma Jones has been appointed co-chair of the advisory board of the Initiative to Strengthen Neighborhood Inter-Group Assets, a program of The Community Foundation.

Since its inception, the Initiative has provided more than $1 million in grants to 40 community-based efforts to create social change by addressing the root causes of injustices that impact low-income residents.

Jones has served on the board for the past three years. Since her board tenure, the World Bank has contributed more than $75,000 to the Inter-Group Initiative.

Terri Lee Freeman, The Community Foundation's President, warmly welcomed Jones's appointment as "chosen because of her understanding of social justice issues, commitment to social change and proven leadership in the philanthropic sector." ■

Outstanding Community Service Award to Irv Gamza

By Naomi Monk

When the Fourth Street Neighborhood Group hosted the Police Service Area (PSA) 110 at their monthly meeting, Wednesday, February 26, 2003, Councilwoman Sharon Ambrose awarded Irv Gamza a lovely plaque for his outstanding community service in Southwest Washington, DC. There were about 50 attendees present on a wintery snow-warning evening.

For the past 23 years Mr. Gamza, has had a constant commitment to the improvement of the quality of life for Southwest residents, especially children and the Metropolitan Police. He volunteered his time, talent and financial resources in support of many worthy causes. He has collected and donated money for children school supplies and uniforms; new Hewlett-Packard DeskJet Printers for a Youth Community Service Center, Christmas toys and games, vests for policemen.

Mr. Gamza has participated in the selection of the officer who receives the First District Cop's Cop Award each month. He has enlisted Southwest neighbors to participate in the First District Annual awards activities. He was the co-leader of the Southwest Orange Hats, which was initiated in 1990 to walk the drug crime area of beat 28 (now called Police Service Area (PSA) 110). He religiously walked every night, seven days a week for the first couple of years.

At the Citizens Advisory Council banquet in 1999, Irv Gamza was awarded the Distinguished Civilian Service Award. Commander Kim Dine stated that from that year on the award would be named the Irv Gamza Distinguished Civilian Service Award. This award is for many, many years of continued exemplary service and for the outstanding service that Irv has done in each of those years. ■

Presidential Yacht Sequoia Leads Parade

Wood paneling on the historic Sequoia, presidential yacht for 7 presidents.

A parade of lighted boats will sail along the Southwest waterfront Sat. evening, Apr. 5 starting at 7 pm during the second week of the Cherry Blossom Festival.

With the Presidential Yacht Sequoia in the lead, power boats and sail boats from marinas up and down the Potomac will sail by with lights blazing. This year a dramatic 39-foot Chinese dragon boat with booming drum and a Hawaiian outrigger canoe will join in.

The parade can be viewed from waterfront restaurants or, at no cost, from East Potomac Park, the small parks along Water Street, or along the seawall from the Titanic Memorial to the Fish Wharf.

At the tiller on the right, Patt Meyer, coach—a Southwest resident—is shown in a dragon boat practicing on the Anacostia River. At the far left is the drummer keeping time for the rowers.

Dragon Boat Races In May

Memorial Day weekend will open the season of Dragon Boat racing with launching of boats from Thompson's Boat House at the Potomac River end of Virginia Ave., at the start of Rock Creek Parkway, with best viewing at Georgetown Harbor.

In April some teams will start practicing out of the Anacostia Community Boat House at 11th St. S.E. and O St. S.E.

Last year there were eight experienced teams and 37 teams. Anyone wanting to organize a team should call Patt Meyer after 6 pm at 484-2133.

Litter Cleanup Sat. Mar. 29

Southwest residents and businesses are joining a citywide trash pickup drive between March 29 and May 31, 2003.

Local organizers are Betty Clark and Perry Klein. Information on joining the local campaign is on the SWNA website www.swdc.org.

Mayor Anthony Williams and members of the D.C. Council will be on hand at a kick-off at the corner of 14th St. N.W. and V St. N.W. at 9 am Sat. Mar. 29. Gloves, trash bags and Starbucks coffee will be provided to volunteers.

Southwest resident and ANC member Mary Williams has been appointed by Mayor Williams as Clean City Coordinator.

Scholarship Applications At S.W. Library

S.W. students attending college next fall for the 2003-2004 school year can get applications at the S.W. Library for grants from SWNA's Scholarship Committee.

Last fall 13 S.W. students received grants ranging from $400 to $1,000 to help with the cost of books, fees and transportation. Grades, community service and need help the committee make their decisions.

Tax-deductible contributions are being solicited from Southwest residents and friends of youth. Mail to:

4 1/2 St. Shops in Old Southwest

In 1913 Meyer Aaron Wolpe had this shop on 4 1/2 St (now called 4th St.) in Southwest. He came from Lithuania, and is shown holding his daughter Anne. The inset is a recent picture of Jazz pianist Larry Eanet, a frequent performer at Jazz in Southwest. Eanet remembers the old 4 1/2 St. shops.

Girls At KGL Rec Center “In The Know”

SWNA's Youth Activities Task Force sponsored six sessions between adults and teen age girls at King Greenleaf Recreation Center discussing health topics from skin care to AIDS.

Ms. Julia Jeffreys, registered nurse and Mary Kay consultant, provided materials and advice on teen pregnancy, STDs and a teen's care of her body.

The program was called “In the Know.” The girls have formed their own club. ■

Practical Training For Baby Sitters

Children in the “Safe Sitters” class, sponsored by SWNA's Youth Activities Task Force, used dummies under the guidance of a fire fighter to learn CPR techniques.

They pose here with various types of safety head gear and the dummies. ■
